Antarctica is seen by many as the 'Last Frontier' for mountaineering objectives due to its remote location and difficulty of access. The Antarctic Peninsula is an exotic location with many opportunities for ski touring and making first ascents!

Adventure Consultants will organise yacht based expeditions to the Antarctic Peninsula on demand for private groups. This allows the trip to be tailored to your personal ambitions of mountaineering or ski mountaineering, with options to ice or rock climb depending on conditions. The emphasis will be on getting the most out of your experience, exploring areas of interest and even perhaps a first ascent or two.

EXPEDITION OVERVIEW

Our Antarctic journeys begin in Ushuaia, Tierra del Fuego, on the southern tip of Argentina. Ushuaia is a bustling port town and its 40,000 inhabitants are nestled between the cold mountains and an even colder sea. 'Downtown' has plenty of shops including cafés, clothes shops, chemists and an array of good restaurants.

After gear checks and initial briefings, the group will load onto the yacht for the expedition. For the /20 expeditions we plan to utilise an ice reinforced aluminium yacht that can accommodate around 8 passengers in style.

Sailing the Drake Passage is an unforgettable and unique sailing experience in itself and a great way to start our expedition. The crossing usually takes three or four days and once we're into the more sheltered waters of the Peninsula, our first stop will most likely be Port Lockroy for some instruction and/or re-capping of general mountaineering skills.

Crevasse rescue is high on the list and we will combine the group's experience into one standard technique. Our isolation means that we need to be completely self-reliant and we will always operate in a safe and slightly conservative manner to avoid any possibility of an accident.

Port Lockroy is a great place to then stretch the legs for a climb or snow shoe, getting our land legs back into motion after a few days at sea. We may visit the British Base at Port Lockroy and, if so, you can send a postcard home from the most southern post office on the planet.

Our itinerary for these trips is flexible, combining climbing and skiing time with exploring on the yacht, which in turn depends mostly on weather and sea ice conditions. The yacht is fitted with the latest weather forecasting technology, satellite phone and e-mail facilities to monitor conditions and to keep in touch with home, if you so wish.

We plan to work our way down the coast towards the Lemaire Channel, climbing and skiing whatever we like the look of on the way. The opportunities are endless and have hardly had their surface scratched by mountaineers.

Another unique feature of this expedition is that we are able to return to the yacht's heated saloon, occasional hot showers, warm beds and great food after the day's activities.

Our guides have an intimate knowledge of the various hidden gems in and around the Peninsula. Some of the peaks we may climb include Mount Shackleton, Mount Scott, Mount Francais and literally hundreds of others. We will also seek out our own unclimbed peaks, as the boat will be on hand to transport us to whatever looks 'on' as conditions allow.

Most of the time we will be doing day trips from the boat, as staying overnight onshore can be quite time consuming and logistically requires a huge effort to carry equipment. Although we will take tents, as some objectives may require a night or two to climb, and doing so allows us flexibility to explore further inland if desired.

We will continue further south as the trip progresses, depending on sea ice conditions and weather. We may get as far south as Prospect Point which has an amazing array of unclimbed peaks and great ski touring. The sea ice will vary from season to season and even day to day, so a major consideration for the areas we visit will depend on exactly where we can land a boat.

After approximately 14 days of exploring the endless climbing and/or ski opportunities, we will reluctantly have to move north up the Peninsula to the Paradise Harbour region to be in a position to cross the Drake Passage. The Drake Passage is renowned for extreme weather, so we need to allow some time to pick the best suitable time to cross back to South America. If the weather is not favourable in the passage, it might still be good on the Peninsula so we'll just keep on skiing and climbing until the conditions are right.

The sail back across the Drake Passage always presents an interesting challenge. The oceans are severe and unforgiving, so you'll appreciate the experience of the crew. There is time to learn the ropes and help out with the sailing, if you are well enough!

Rounding Cape Horn under sail ticks another box in every adventurer's wish list. There is nothing like making landfall in the unique beech forests of Patagonia after weeks of just snow and ice, whilst debriefing with a few pisco sours at the 'Micalvi', the sunken ship which serves as a bar in Puerto Williams.

If we cross back early, there may be time for an overnight hike from Puerto Williams which is exceptionally beautiful with dozens of lakes and a non-technical rock spire to climb.

The whole trip is an experience of a lifetime and one of our most special explorative expeditions.

PREREQUISITE EXPERIENCE

To climb and ski on the Antarctic Peninsula you need to be physically fit, have an adventurous attitude and be proficient in general mountaineering techniques.

Expedition members can expect to exert themselves for about six to twelve hours per day and be capable of carrying a 10-20kg/25-45lb pack. Our climbing days are sometimes long to make the most of good weather spells and there is always the option of taking a day off climbing to relax on the yacht and watch the wildlife.

This expedition is not suitable for those who are new to mountaineering, but we can organise a pre-expedition training programme through our international climbing schools in New Zealand, the European Alps or North America to get you ready.

TEAM SIZE

The number of guides is determined by the team size and the yacht used but the normal ratio of guides to members for Antarctica Peninsula is 1:3 or 1:4.

SAMPLE ITINERARY

Departures are available on demand from November 2019 to March 2020.

The following is a sample itinerary for the Antarctic Peninsula Yacht Based Expedition:

Day 1	Evening briefing in Ushuaia.
Day 2	Load and board the yacht, sailing to Puerto Williams, Chile.
Day 3–6	Sail across the Drake Passage.
Day 7	Continue to Port Lockroy, instruction session and short climb or ski tour.
Day 8	Climb up Mt Lopez (525m/1,722ft) on Doumer Island or climb on Jabet Peak or other.
Day 9–20	Head down the Graham Coast, possibly as far south as Prospect Point, generally exploring and climbing, eventually working our way back north to Paradise Harbour.
Day 21–24	Be in a position to sail back. Climb and ski tour in the region or north around Danco and Ronge Islands.
Day 25–29	Sail back to Puerto Williams. Debrief at the “Micalvi” Puerto Williams and/or go for overnight hike in mountains behind town.
Day 30	Trip ends in Ushuaia, depart.

NOTE: Due to the unknown nature of the Drake Passage crossing, we may find ourselves back in Ushuaia a few days early. The trip will end upon our return so please buy changeable air tickets if you want to return home as soon as we arrive back. Otherwise there are numerous hikes and areas to explore around Ushuaia which you are welcome to explore at your own pace.

THE ADVANTAGES OF CLIMBING WITH ADVENTURE CONSULTANTS

Adventure Consultants is renowned for the quality of its service and strategy applied to high altitude expedition climbing. Our reputation is attributed to meticulous planning and experienced logistics coordination. We have a philosophy of investing in every expedition to offer our climbers the best possible chance of success.

We employ strong and specialised Expedition leaders and support staff, who are some of the most pre-eminent in the industry. We pride ourselves on operating with small teams, with the best back-up and support available. This includes nutritious and ample quantities of food, comfortable Base Camp facilities, reliable communications systems and the necessary medical back up.

Many of our expedition members come to us because they have seen us in action on a previous trip and decide to opt for our level of service and proven experience. Others return because they know we do our very best to make expeditions safe and successful.

VISAS

Generally entry visas are not required for travellers to Argentina staying less than three months but please check with your details according to your nationality.

EQUIPMENT LIST & REFERENCE NOTES

Expedition members will be sent a list detailing all the necessary clothing and equipment to be individually procured, contained within a set of Expedition Reference Notes with all the details of the trip. These notes provide extensive information on everything, from suggestions on what type of camera to bring to training advice for your expedition preparation.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION & INSURANCE

Expedition members will be provided with a medical questionnaire. This information will be sighted only by our Medical Adviser and treated with full confidentiality. We also require members to have rescue insurance and we will consult with individual team members on their insurance needs and solutions for coverage.

FOOD

While on the yacht all meals will be supplied by the boat staff. This will be high quality cuisine served in the heated and very comfortable saloon.

While climbing on the Peninsula, your guides will supply snacks and lunches supplemented by food, such as sandwiches, from the boat staff.
