Mount Kenya is an extinct volcano with jagged peaks rising out of the heart of the Mount Kenya National Park in Africa. The second highest point in Africa, Mount Kenya is an exciting pre-climb to our Mount Kilimanjaro expedition or an adventure on its own. It has three main peaks; the highest and most difficult is Batian (5,199m/17,058ft), 11m lower is Nelion at (5,188m/17,020ft) and lastly Lenana Peak (4,985m/16,355ft), which is a straightforward trekking route.

Mount Kenya’s two higher peaks are permanently cloaked by snow and small glaciers and are home to an array of technical alpine climbs, delivering lively contrast to the equatorial terrain on the approach. We climb Batian Peak in the June/July season and Nelion Peak in December/January, as these are the preferable seasons for each climb. An accompanying trek to Lenana Peak is offered alongside both departures.

The journey through the forest and moorland is for many the highlight of the expedition. Here you will be intrigued by the exotic equatorial flora and the transition zones from wetland to heather and alpine zones. We intentionally traverse the National Park on our trek to and from the mountain to ensure adequate acclimatisation and interesting new terrain each day, with the ascent of Mount Kenya being the geographical highlight in the middle of the journey.

About the Expedition

Mount Kenya is located in central Kenya, just south of the equator, around 150km/95 miles north-northeast of Nairobi. The area around the mountain is protected in the Mount Kenya National Park, which is a designated UNESCO World Heritage Site. The mountain is even visible from high-rise buildings in Nairobi.

Mount Kenya has several distinct ecological zones namely Savannah grasslands, tropical forest, bamboo zone, heather zone, the Bog, the alpine, snow and glacier zone, and finally the rocky pinnacle, which makes up the summit area.

Kenya enjoys an equatorial climate with average annual temperatures of about 26°C/79°F. There are two rainy seasons on the mountain from April-June and October-December.
The mountain is an important water catchment area and many rivers, such as the Naro Moru, emerge from the melting glaciers.

The missionary Johann Ludwig Krapf was the first European to report a sighting of Mount Kenya in 1849. The first recorded ascent of Mount Kenya was made by Halford Mackinder, César Ollier and Joseph Brocherel in 1899. The lower summit, Nelion, was first climbed by Eric Shipton in 1929, with Shipton and Bill Tilman completing the traverse of the ridge between the two highest peaks.

We program the dates of the ascent to allow you to maximise your adventures while you are in Africa, so if you want to you can easily travel to Tanzania for an ascent of Mount Kilimanjaro after you climb Mount Kenya. After Kilimanjaro, you may also wish to enjoy a wildlife safari through the wonders of the Serengeti, Rift Valley and Ngorongoro Crater, where the variety of wildlife will completely captivate you. These three trips are designed to give you the ultimate African adventure or you may simply wish to climb Mount Kenya for a superb remote summit, in what is one of the world’s most romantic alpine settings. If you feel the need for a romantic sojourn before returning home, you can fly on to the exotic island of Zanzibar. Take in the ambience of historic Stone Town with its ancient architectural splendours, as well as taking some time out on the beach or experiencing the spectacular diving.
